Step 1

Arrange the Base upside down and keep it as secure as possible, such as propping it up with two boxes or two books. You need the bottom of the Base to be facing up.

Using a Phillips head screwdriver, unscrew and remove the installed cover plate. Save the screws to later install the Cable cover.

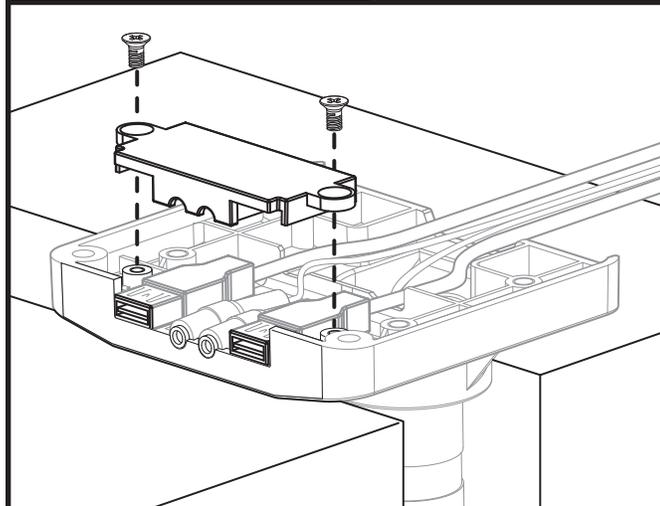

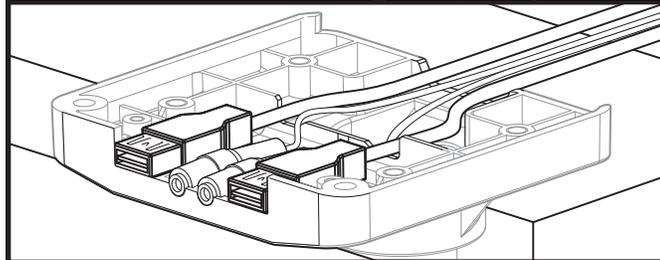

Step 2

Uncoil and straighten the USB and Audio cables in this kit.

Take the Audio cable by the female end. Make sure the two ends coming from the split are not twisted over each other. Place the two female ends into the inner two notches of the base as shown, running the wires through the cutouts and on either side of the metal divide (marked with an arrow) and out the cutout at the back of the base.

Take the USB cables by the female ends placing them at the two outer notches of the base, with the USB icons on each facing down as shown. The wires will be loose at this point, but take care to keep them in place.

Step 3

Holding the wires in place, position the Cable cover over the wires to secure them. You may need to shift the cables a bit as you get the cover in place. Once in place, the cover should click into place, and the cables should be flush with the Base's front. Hold the cover still and attach it using the Phillips head screws you removed in Step 1.

The Base is now ready to for the rest of the Monitor Arm assembly instructions. Important: Ensure the cables stay routed through the cutouts so they don't get pinched when you connect the Upper Clamp or Upper Base plate.
